

Noelia Martínez-Doallo (she/her)

Biography

LLB, LLM in European Union Law, and PhD in Law awarded cum laude and with special distinction at the University of A Coruna (Spain). Since May 2021, postdoctoral fellow of the Zukunftskolleg (Institute for Advanced Studies) at the University of Konstanz (Germany). Winner of four fellowships obtained in national and international competition, and research and management experience as member of three publicly funded research projects. 329 hours of university teaching experience at two different European universities: University of A Coruna (Spain) and University of Konstanz (Germany). Author of peer-reviewed publications both in Spanish and English language on topics related to biomedicine, medical Law and the discourse of human rights from a legophilosophical and European/international law perspective. Speaker at various Spanish and English-speaking, national and international scientific congresses. Visiting researcher at Yale University (USA), the Hastings Center (USA), the University of Essex (UK), and L'Université d'Aix-Marseille (France).

Research Expertise

Bioethics · Human Rights Law · International Health Law · Legal Theory · Philosophy of Law'